

When you're driving towards the property on CR 137, you'll first come to a little no trespassing sign and a partially completed dirt driveway at the far east property line as seen in the picture above. The east property line goes pretty much straight back from this short driveway.

If you keep driving, you'll come to the main entrance as seen in the picture above. You should see a for sale sign here. You can just lift the chain across the front entrance off the little post it's wrapped around. It's not really locked. If you drive into the main entrance and go all the way back to the little cabin, the back property line is just a little past the cabin. There is a fence along the back property line.

If you leave the main entrance and drive further down CR 137, you'll come to the west property line. The west property line is located near the center of a very sharp turn in the road as seen in the picture above. The west property line goes straight back from this point, and there is another no trespassing sign here as well.

The really sharp turn in the road is also where the smaller 0.86 acre lot included in the sale is located. Only the first little section of this lot is actually flat, and the rest is a pretty steep drop off. I included a picture of the first little section of this lot above.

FYI, if you look closely, you should see some wooden stakes with purple flags wrapped around them that mark certain points along the property lines throughout the property.
